

Going to Market

You work for Going to Market, a local social enterprise of market gardeners that grows and sells its own produce (and occasional exotic items from elsewhere). You currently sell almost all your produce to the local fruit and veg wholesaler who then sells on to retailers. While this hasn't changed, the wholesaler has asked you to take part in a new market, where consumers themselves will be able to buy direct from suppliers.

Your job is to prepare for this week's market. There is not enough space in your van to take all of the produce that you want to. In fact, you can only fit 12 boxes of produce. What will you need to take into account when filling your van?
